

With Savannah Bee Company

As 5774 approaches, we pray for a good and sweet year. Honey has been part of the Jewish tradition for thousands of years, as exemplified by the age-old custom of using a taste of honey to encourage and reward young children in their Torah learning. And now honey has gotten even sweeter! With Rosh Hashanah approaching, it's time to think honey; actually it's always time to think honey -- on yogurt, in tea, on poultry, in cereal, fruit and of course in challah—our favorite.

The Savannah Bee Company has redefined honey and educated the consumer as to the many ways to use and enjoy this golden nectar. Just as there are numerous sources and types of wine, coffee, scotch and chocolate, raw honey too is sourced globally and is available in single varieties and blends – each with different characteristics, taste variations, suggested uses and flavors.

Some of the classic favorites and newest honeys as described by the honey mavens, our friends at The Savannah Bee Company:
